of papers with the correspondence between the courts of england and scotland the two classes were found to be so intimately blended that for literary and historical purposes they were unfit to be separated and further there appeared to exist a third class equally inseparable consisting of correspondence between the english ambassador in scotland and the english authorities on the south of the tweed viz at one time the lord warden of the marches or his vice wardens at another the lord lieutenant beyond trent at a third the lieu tenant of the north at a fourth the lord president and council of the north and occasionally two or even three of these contemporaneously it has therefore been determined to publish in one series the papers falling within these three classes similar considerations have led to the resolution to defer the publication of the correspondence with the kings representatives at calais until that with the court of france shall be ready for the press these arrangements present next to our notice in this publication the correspondence with foreign courts and as the connexion between the two crowns of england and scotland which subsisted in the 16th century and has since been cemented by the union of the realms presents scotland as the state entitled to the first notice precedence has been given to that kingdom the two succeeding volumes therefore contain the state papers relative to scotland including those which for the reasons above stated are incorporated about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works the spiritual malaise regnant in today's disenchanted world presents a picture of a polar night of icy darkness as Max Weber wrote already a century ago this collective dark night of the soul is driven by climate change related disasters rapid technological innovations and opaque geopolitical realignments in the wake of what policy analysts refer to as westlessness the post modern age is characterized by incessant distractions urgent calls to responsibility and inhumanly short deadlines which result in a general state of exhaustion and burnout the hovering sense of living in a time frame that is post history induces states of confusion on a personal level as well as in the realm of politics totally missing is a grand narrative to guide humanity's vision in the midst of a world crisis thinkers scholars and Jungian analysts are increasingly looking to C. G. Jung's monumental oeuvre the Red Book as a source for guidance to re-enchant the world and to find a new and deeper understanding of the homo religiosus the essays in this series on Jung's Red Book for our time searching for soul under postmodern conditions circle around this objective and offer countless points of entry into this inspiring work under the curse of Orochi the great demon serpent reborn every 300 years Japan has been shrouded in clouds for as long as anyone can remember the way of the samurai is at an end and carrying swords has been outlawed to combat the rising crime rates an inescapable prison was built in the middle of Lake Biwa when brothers Tenka Soramaru and Chutarō Kumo are hired to capture and transport offenders to their final lodgings in this prison they unexpectedly find themselves faced with a greater destiny than any of them could have imagined reads R.
